

THE BUNNELLS

FEBRUARY LETTER

News From the World

At Biblical Ministries Worldwide, we have been working on a global response for our missions family. Our Crisis Management Team has done a tremendous job working through and successfully delivering evacuations and health protocols. It is important with the worldwide reach of the COVID-19 virus for you to pray on a global level for the Gospel to move forward in these uncertain times. Another tangible way you can assist with this need is to consider donating to our Contingency Reserve Fund (Project #5970).

News From London

We continue to stay in touch with our friends and ministries in the UK. We have helped with legal questions, support needs, and filling pastoral vacancies in the last month alone. We are thrilled to hear that a good number of people are attending the monthly Bible Institute to study theology. Of course, like all of Europe, the UK is being hit hard by COVID-19. This health crisis will likely slow the growth of the work over there. However, we pray that in the long run, the church will respond effectively with the Gospel.

MISSIONS PHILOSOPHY

We started on deputation for Russia in 1999. In two decades of living in four countries, and traveling to more than forty, we have learned a lot about the world, and a lot about missions. For the first time in a long time, we have had space to pause and reflect on the past, and strategically think through the future. With the opportunity to lead a missions organization, I thought it would be a great time to give you our philosophy of missions. The first of three principles that I will share is that of "Effectiveness."

The picture above was taken at the Bibelseminar of Bonn, in Germany. Touring this campus with friends some years ago, we discovered a dynamic institution training leaders from the Russian-German community. In short, we found people who were effectively ministering to their context. Our first point of being successful in missions, is asking, "Do you know your context?" Do you know where you live, and do you understand the people who live around you?
